

If learning could be bottled we wouldn't need teachers

Unfortunately in real life our learners are not empty vessels waiting to be filled, they will need inspiration and nurturing.

Enrol on one of our forthcoming short Teach the Teacher courses and discover how to plan and structure your teaching to optimise learning opportunities. In just a short time you will learn some great tips and be able to evaluate your own practice

The programme is delivered over two days. Most of the learning inputs are delivered on the first day with the second day, a week or two later, devoted to the delegates' micro-teach presentations and evaluations.

The course content includes an understanding of the nature of adult, learning, lesson planning, teaching methodology, the teaching cycle, learning styles, assessment and evaluation. The sessions are interactive, thought provoking and loaded with good practical advice.

This programme is suitable for anyone who has or is considering having a teaching role, or even someone merely wishing to refresh their skills and knowledge.
